GDP by County

BEA is working on new statistics to measure the economic performance of each of the nation's 3,000-plus counties.

The first prototype GDP by county statistics are slated to be released on December 12.

These annual statistics will:

- » Help businesses identify local markets for their products
- » Assist local governments seeking to attract investment
- » Give a fuller picture of the economic landscape across the United States

If feasible, the data will include some detail about how goods-producing industries, services-producing industries, and government fared in each county. Going forward, BEA will consider the feasibility of providing more detailed information about each county's industries.
